

TEN BEST BRUNCHES IN MIAMI BEACH

Brunch: it's what's for breakfast (and lunch) on the weekend. It seems as though brunch culture in the Magic City has finally caught up with the rest of the country's fascination over the sweet meets savory and boozy meal period.

Sunday, a day once dreaded by chefs, has become the busiest meal of the week for many restaurants. Take Yardbird for example, which spearheaded the brunch train on South Beach in 2011, just six months after opening, and still has a line as early as 9:30 a.m. every Sunday morning. Four years is a long time, and many have come aboard since then.

Here are the top ten brunches in Miami Beach.

Beef cheek burger

Courtesy of Tongue & Cheek

7. Tongue & Cheek

There's a reason why Tongue & Cheek earned a coveted spot on the next round of Bravo's newest reality series, Best New Restaurant. It's called the beef cheek burger ($14), and you can find it on the brunch menu at T&C, right alongside one of the city's top chicken and waffles ($19) and other usual brunch suspects like a brisket benedict, French toast, and huevos rancheros. Wash it all down with a smoky barbecue bloody.